ROMANS PROJECT

Equipping pastors to abide in and feed their congregations from God's Word

Reaching into South Sudan

It is not without difficulty that our National Directors bring the Romans Project to pastors in remote and sometimes dangerous places. Here is what Ken Onywoki writes about his recent trip to South Sudan.

Because of security concerns we were delayed and arrived late for our meetings with church leaders in Arilo. While some leaders had given up and gone home - there is no communication at all here, even to use a cell phone you have to climb to the top of Mount Arilo - would you believe that there were eleven leaders waiting for our arrival? They had walked for 10 hours to attend. When we began the meetings the following morning there were 50 leaders in total.

The meetings went on very well. The place is purely a wilderness. No road network. I mean the roads are so bad. The houses in the Tenet community are mostly on top of the hills because of security reasons. Guns here are so common even my host Pastor has a gun in his house.

We had a scare on our return travel when we met a group of youth (8) with guns and dogs, but thank God they just waved at us and left. We were told they normally don't do that.

At the airport I met a man who told me I am brave to have gone there. But I would go again given an opportunity. The leaders received the Romans Project well. Let us remember the people of Arilo. Thank you for praying with me.

Opening New Countries in South East Asia

In a few weeks Rick Calenberg leaves for the Philippines to meet Pastor Cesar Tallada our National Director. Together they will meet with pastors in the Philippines before going to Thailand,

Cesar Tallada, National Director the Philippines.

Myanmar and Cambodia. Cesar has contacts in these SE Asian countries that we hope will bring the Romans Project to their nations in the near future. Pray that they could identify key leaders while on this trip. Please consider partnering with us to bring the Romans Project to SE Asia in 2016!

In Their Own Words

I am having a wonderful time reading Romans 20 times. It is so encouraging, reading and playing the messages of the book of Romans. I am enjoying it so much and am teaching it in my church in a Bible study. When I get up in the morning I read and at night time I read and any other time I can get, I am reading Romans. I am also encouraging the people of my church to be reading it. Everywhere I go, people see me with the earphones in and ask me about it. I tell them all about it and how wonderful [the Romans Project] is.
